

2015 TRCP
Western Media Summit
Bozeman, Montana
Media Attendees

Kent Danjanovich is CFO and senior editor of Sportsman's News. After a 25-year career as a PGA Golf Professional, he started a small publication in Southern Utah in 1999 that eventually became the official publication of Sportsman's Warehouse. A lifelong, avid hunter and fisherman, it is now his great honor to travel around the world, covering some of the most spectacular settings imaginable, and the outfitters who host hunters and anglers there. The outdoors have always been his passion and one of his goals is to make sure they are preserved for generations to come.

Kelsey Dayton is an award-winning journalist based in Missoula, Montana. She is a freelance writer and editor of Outdoors Unlimited, the magazine of the Outdoor Writers Association of America. Her work has appeared in national outlets such as Outside and the Washington Post, as well as regional and local publications such as Wyoming Wildlife and Montana Magazine. She writes a weekly outdoor column for Wyofile.com.

PJ DelHomme is the hunting editor at Bugle magazine with the Rocky Mountain Elk Foundation. He also freelances on occasion when his two young children will let him.

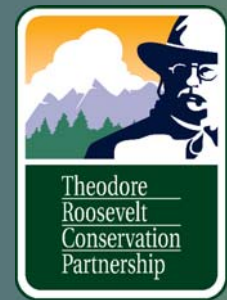

A devout pantheist with moderate bloodlust and a virulent aversion to logical fallacies, Outside Media Group editor and publisher Mike England struggles to reconcile his saturnalian side with the earnest industriousness of his German forbears. Once a writer of questionable promise, Mike now spends the bulk of his time critiquing the work of those who are actually in the arena. His existential angst grows each year.

KFBK Senior Editor Judy Farah has more than 25 years news experience in New York, Los Angeles, and Sacramento. For the past 16 years, she has edited the KFBK Afternoon News with Kitty O'Neal, while also directing the newsroom by assigning stories to reporters and scheduling guest interviews. Farah started out as a newspaper reporter on the East Coast, covered major stories as a reporter and editor for the Associated Press in Los Angeles, including the Olympics, Oscars, Emmys, the presidency of Ronald Reagan and the criminals trials of the Night Stalker and the Hillside Stranglers. Farah currently is a national blogger for The Huffington Post and often speaks on news and social media.

2015 TRCP
Western Media Summit
Bozeman, Montana
Media Attendees

Brett French has worked in the newspaper business across the Northwest for 29 years, since after graduating from the University of Montana School of Journalism. A native Montanan, he is currently the outdoor editor at The Billings Gazette, where he has worked for the past 15 years. An ADD outdoorsman, he enjoys everything from whitewater rafting to fishing, hunting, and backpacking.

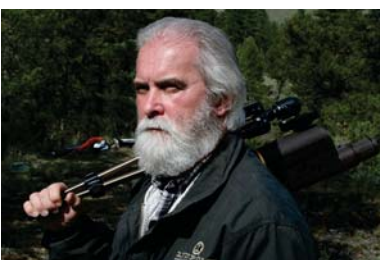

Froma Harrop writes a nationally syndicated column on politics, economics and culture. Represented by Creators Syndicate, Harrop counts the Seattle Times, Newsday, Dallas Morning News, Denver Post, and RealClearPolitics.com among her nearly 200 subscribers. Harrop is a two-time finalist for the Loeb Award for economic commentary. She's been honored by the National Society of Newspaper Columnists and has received five awards from the New England Associated Press News Executives Association. She has been a guest on PBS, MSNBC, NPR and the Daily Show with Jon Stewart. Her work has also appeared in The New York Times and Harper's Bazaar. She currently divides her time between Providence, RI, and New York City.

Mark Herwig has been editor of Pheasants Forever's three magazines since 1998. He also blogs and freelances, most recently for the Ruffed Grouse Society and Minnesota Deer Hunter's Association magazines. His passion of late has been improving wildlife habitat on 44 acres of land near Lake Superior, which is home to deer, ruffed grouse, timber wolves, black bear, woodcock, turkey and the rare golden winged warbler and long eared bat, both of which may soon be protected under the Endangered Species Act.

John Kruse is the host and producer of Northwestern Outdoors Radio, an award winning show heard every weekend on over 50 stations in four states. John is also an established outdoors writer and the author of Great Places Washington, a guide book to outdoor recreation in the Evergreen State. John has served on the board of directors for the Northwest Outdoor Writers Association and is also a member of the Outdoor Writers Association of America.

Shane Mahoney is the President and CEO of Conservation Visions Inc.. Mahoney has over 30 years of experience working primarily as a scientist, wildlife manager, policy innovator and strategic advisor; but also as a filmmaker, writer, narrator, tv and radio personality, and lecturer. A recognized expert of the North American Model of wildlife conservation, Mahoney has written more than 50 scientific articles and 100 popular articles, which have been featured in publications as Sports Afield, North American Hunter, and in the Swedish magazine Big Game. He has appeared as host or narrator for a variety of television and radio efforts, including the Sportsman's Channel's World of Sports Afield, Leupold's Big Game Profiles, and Boone and Crocket Country.

2015 TRCP Western Media Summit Bozeman, Montana

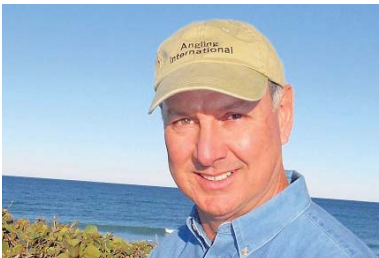

Media Attendees

A longtime editor, reporter, and public-affairs specialist, Andrew McKean has been editor-in-chief of Outdoor Life since 2011. McKean started his 25-year career as a journalist at weekly and daily newspapers in Montana and Washington State, serving as a general-assignment reporter, city-desk editor, and reporter for environmental, land-use, and public-policy beats. He later became a freelance contributor to a number of national publications, including Outdoor Life. He left the private sector to work as information officer for Montana Fish, Wildlife & Parks for six years before returning to Outdoor Life to serve as the magazine's hunting editor, a position he retains. McKean lives in eastern Montana with his family.

Miles Nolte loves water. He grew up in Hawaii and spent much of his time in the ocean, fishing, surfing, diving, and being fascinated with the world below the surface, a world foreign to most terrestrial creatures. Miles also loves literature: he is a freelance writer and faculty member in the English department at Montana State University. Miles' first book, The Alaska Chronicles—a memoir of one of his seasons guiding in Alaska—was published in 2009 and named as a finalist for the Independent Book of the Year. Miles has been the angling columnist for Gray's Sporting Journal since 2012. His work can also be found in The Drake, Fly Fish Journal, American Angler, and Fly Rod and Reel.

Stuart Pavlik is based in North Palm Beach, Florida where he manages the US and Canadian accounts of fishing tackle trade magazine and UK publisher Angling International. An avid angler with media communications experience gained at Florida Sportsman, Stuart has a strong understanding of global fishing and fisheries issues from his tenure at the International Game Fish Association, producing the Shallow Water Fishing Expos and marine conservation work.

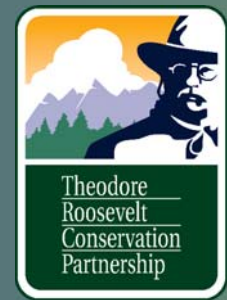

Shawn Perich writes about the outdoors from his home on North Shore of Lake Superior. His weekly column, Points North, has appeared in Minnesota Outdoor News for over 20 years. He is the co-founder and owner of Northern Wilds Media, Inc., a publishing and communications firm in Grand Marais, MN. He has written eight books, including Fly-Fishing the North Country. An avid hunter and angler, Perich enjoys still-hunting for mature bucks in the boreal forests near his home.

Dusan Smetana is one of the world's most sought-after sporting photographers, with over 100 national and international magazine covers and work showcased in museums and galleries across the United States and Europe, as well as in the U.S. Embassy in Slovakia. His clients include the National Geographic Society, The United Nations, The New York Times, the Smithsonian, Ram, Nissan, Nikon, Swarovski, Winchester, Remington, Cabela's, Orvis, L.L. Bean, Field & Stream, Forbes, Outdoor Life and numerous other outdoor magazines and companies. He was brought in by the Montana State Tourism Board to help create the award-winning campaign "Get Lost in Montana". His images have been included in more than 40 books, including his own Just Jack Russells and 101 Uses for a Jack Russell.

2015 TRCP
Western Media Summit
Bozeman, Montana
Media Attendees

John B. Snow is Outdoor Life's shooting editor. He joined the magazine in 2001, and is only the fifth person to hold the shooting editor title since Outdoor Life was founded in 1898. Snow is an avid sportsman who has traveled the world to hunt big game, upland birds and waterfowl. He is also a competitive shooter, participating in 3-gun, action pistol and sniper matches across the United States. He is a certified firearms instructor and award-winning journalist. Snow oversees all the firearms reviews and shooting skills coverage for Outdoor Life, is the host of The Gun Shots blog and Gun Lab online video series, and author of The Ultimate Shooting Skills Manual. Prior to coming Outdoor Life, Snow was editor-in-chief of Fishing & Hunting News and spent several years working at newspapers, including The New York Times. Snow received his Master's degree from the Medill School of Journalism at Northwestern University. He lives with his family and bird dogs in southwestern Montana.

Pat Straub grew up in Bozeman, learning to fish on Sourdough Creek. He left Montana for college, knowing he would eventually return. After earning a degree in writing from Beloit College, he returned, ready to take on Montana's trout streams. After spending one day on the water as a guide for Parks' Fly Shop in Gardiner, he knew his work lie in guiding. Since then he has managed a private angling and hunting club, written a half-a-dozen books, including the forthcoming Everything You Wanted to Know About Fly Fishing But Were Afraid to Ask. He and his wife own and operate Gallatin River Guides in Big Sky, Montana and with Garrett Munson, he owns and operates Montana Fishing Outfitters.

Don Thomas edits Traditional Bowhunter magazine and writes regularly about wing-shooting, fly-fishing, bowhunting, and wildlife for many national publications including Gray's Sporting Journal, Ducks Unlimited, Pheasants Forever, and Alaska. He has written 19 books on related subjects, including Whitefish Can't Jump, The Language of Wings, How Sportsmen Saved the World and, most recently, Montana's Peaks, Streams and Prairie. He recently retired from jobs as a physician on a Montana Indian reservation and a bear hunting guide in Alaska. Don, his wife Lori, and their dogs now live in central Montana.

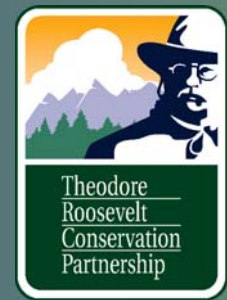

Greg Thomas is the editor of Fly Rod & Reel magazine. He writes for various outlets, including The New York Times, Forbes, Big Sky Journal, and Field & Stream, etc. He lives in Missoula, Mont., with his two daughters.

A fourth generation Montanan and an outdoorswoman accomplished with longbow, shotgun, and fly rod, Lori Thomas worked for years as a Registered Nurse after graduating from Montana State University. She now spends her time as an outdoor photographer, and her images have appeared in many books and national publications. She has lived in southeast Alaska and currently resides in central Montana.

2015 TRCP
Western Media Summit
Bozeman, Montana

Media Attendees

Brett Walton writes about agriculture, energy, and the politics and economics of water in the United States for Circle of Blue, and he occasionally reports on Australia, India, and the Middle East. Brett also writes the “Federal Water Tap,” Circle of Blue’s weekly digest of U.S. government water news. He has an MA in Central Asian studies from the University of Washington and a BA in English from the University of Richmond. In 2014, the Society of Environmental Journalists awarded Brett third place in the SEJ annual awards competition for beat reporting in a small market (Western water issues). Brett has received fellowships from SEJ (2013) and the Institute for Journalism and Natural Resources (2011).

Associate Professor Nadia White joined the University of Montana faculty in 2006 after a career in newspaper journalism that included working in Casper, Wyo., and Boulder, Colo. She also worked in Washington D.C. where she covered federal lands and conservation policy issues for the Casper Star-Tribune. She specializes in environmental and public affairs journalism, serves as faculty adviser to the Montana Kaimin, UM’s student newspaper., and faculty adviser to the University of Montana’s Outdoor Writers Association of America student chapter. Nadia graduated from Bates College with a Bachelor’s degree in psychology and a concentration in Asian literature. She earned a Master’s degree in journalism from the Columbia University’s Graduate School of Journalism.