We could think of no better way to support the ideals of Theodore Roosevelt and the long term mission of the TRCP than through a planned gift. We cannot, on one hand, talk about the conservation of our natural resources and the preservation of our outdoor heritage while at the same time ignore those things that each of us may do to help sustain organizations such as the TRCP who lead in this effort.

The TRCP fights on behalf of America’s outdoor community in Washington and throughout the country. Please join us in including the Theodore Roosevelt Conservation Partnership in your will or estate planning. As a united force, we can ensure that our treasured wild habitats and game remain intact for the next generation to enjoy.

— Paul and Carol Rose
Hillman, MI

For more than a century, sportsmen and women have been the driving force behind conservation in America. We fought to create a public lands network where all Americans could hunt and fish. We helped pass the nation’s environmental laws and used those laws to restore habitat and recover species. And we created funding mechanisms to ensure that fish and wildlife would be professionally managed for generations to come. Today, sportsmen’s dollars fund a conservation system that is the envy of the world.

Our work is not done, nor will it ever be. We face an ever growing population, increased development, altering demographics, decreasing budgets, a changing climate and fewer policy makers who understand or appreciate hunters and anglers and their role in conservation.

Inspired by the legacy of Theodore Roosevelt, the Theodore Roosevelt Conservation Partnership (TRCP) is working every day to strengthen laws, policies and practices affecting conservation. The TRCP is the only group dedicated exclusively to ensuring that all hunters and anglers are represented in Washington, D.C. and across the country.

Leave a legacy of conservation. Join us as we speak out in support of sportsmen’s values and our nation’s unique outdoor heritage. Together, we’re uniting to guarantee that all Americans will have quality places to hunt and fish… now and forever.

“There can be no greater issue than that of conservation in this country.” — Theodore Roosevelt

Theodore Roosevelt helped conserve more than 150 million acres of lands for public use during his lifetime.

Plan your Legacy

There are many ways to make conservation part of your legacy. The three most popular methods to support the TRCP are listed below. The tax advantages and other benefits vary, so please consult your legal or financial advisors to determine which is best for you.

Bequest
Allocate assets (a specific amount, percentage, or remainder of your estate) to be transferred to the TRCP in your will. This option does not require you to part with your assets during your lifetime.

Retirement Plan/IRA Designation
Choose the TRCP as an entire or partial beneficiary of your IRA or other retirement plan. (In some cases, you may achieve significant income and estate tax savings by naming a charity as the beneficiary of your retirement plan assets rather than a non-charity – sometimes the tax savings is as much as 75 cents on the dollar).

Life Insurance Designation
Designate a specific amount or percentage of your life insurance policy to the TRCP. You may give an existing policy, either fully paid or partially paid, or a new policy.

Other options, such as Charitable Remainder Trust, Charitable Lead Trust, and Charitable Gift Annuity are available on a case-by-case basis – please call us at (202) 639-TRCP (8727) for more information.

The TRCP’s federal tax ID number is 04-3706385.

What is the T.R. Legacy Society?
Your legacy gift will honor your passion to conserve the places you love to hunt and fish and protect America’s outdoor resources. By joining the T.R. Legacy Society, you are helping ensure that the TRCP can continue to send a clear message to Washington that conservation matters. You may choose to designate your gift one of two ways:

- As unrestricted, allowing the TRCP to immediately allocate your money where and when it is needed most, keeping in mind that 80 cents of every dollar goes directly to conservation.
- To the Jim Range Conservation Fund, a restricted permanent fund that gives the TRCP long-term financial stability and flexibility.

About the Jim Range Conservation Fund
The Jim Range Conservation Fund was created in honor of the TRCP’s co-founder, Jim Range, following his death in 2009. Jim was dedicated to the idea that all Americans deserve access to exceptional places to hunt and fish, and as a Washingtonian, recognized that for that idea to become a reality, sportsmen needed a voice in our nation’s capital. The TRCP is that voice.

The Jim Range Conservation Fund (JRCF) is crucial to the TRCP’s ability to achieve its goals. Administered by the organization’s board of directors, the fund is used to:

- Enhance the TRCP’s flexibility to seize unexpected opportunities or confront sudden challenges on issues that affect the conservation of fish and wildlife habitat and hunting and fishing;
- Supplement funding to the TRCP’s signature conservation programs: public lands, water, energy, agricultural and private lands, conservation funding and marine fisheries; and
- Provide general operating support to the TRCP to ensure greater financial security, longevity and strategic effectiveness.

Because the JRCF is a permanent fund, you and your family can have the satisfaction of knowing that your gift will have an impact on conservation for years to come. For more information about the JRCF, please visit www.trcp.org/JRCF.
